All-star tribute to Satchmo

Melbourne's Peter Gaudion will channel Louis Armstrong when he leads The Australian Jazz Ensemble at Noosa Chorale's launch of the 10-day Noosa Jazz Party at The J on August 25 and 26.

In this all-star tribute to the lovable Satchmo, the Chorale, Melbourne singer Juliarna Clark, the Shimmie Sisters and the Jazz Ensemble will showcase some of his memorable classics like Hello Dolly, St Louis Blues, Give Me A Kiss to Build a Dream On, Moon River, Ain't Misbehavin', Jeepers Creepers and What a Wonderful World.

Trumpet player Peter is one of Australia's leading jazzmen and has performed at jazz festivals and concerts in many parts of the world. He has a special affinity with Armstrong.

He has played him in the two Australian productions of the Cole Porter musical, High Society, which also starred Lorrae Desmond and Jennifer Byrnes, touring for a total of 18 months.

His "Tribute to Satchmo" concerts have also been a smash hit, one at the Melbourne International Jazz Festival attracting more than 1000 fans.

As Peter told Tune In: "Louis Armstrong was a huge influence on everybody's attitudes to their playing. He invented popular music in the mid-1920s because nobody played like that and nobody sang like that. Nobody was as free."

Peter started playing with his schoolmates at McLeod High School in Melbourne and hasn't put the trumpet down since.

His bands include Frank Traynor's Jazz Preachers, the long-running The Syncopators and his own group, The Blues Express, which includes his son Ashley on alto sax and his cousin, vocalist Jacki Gaudion.

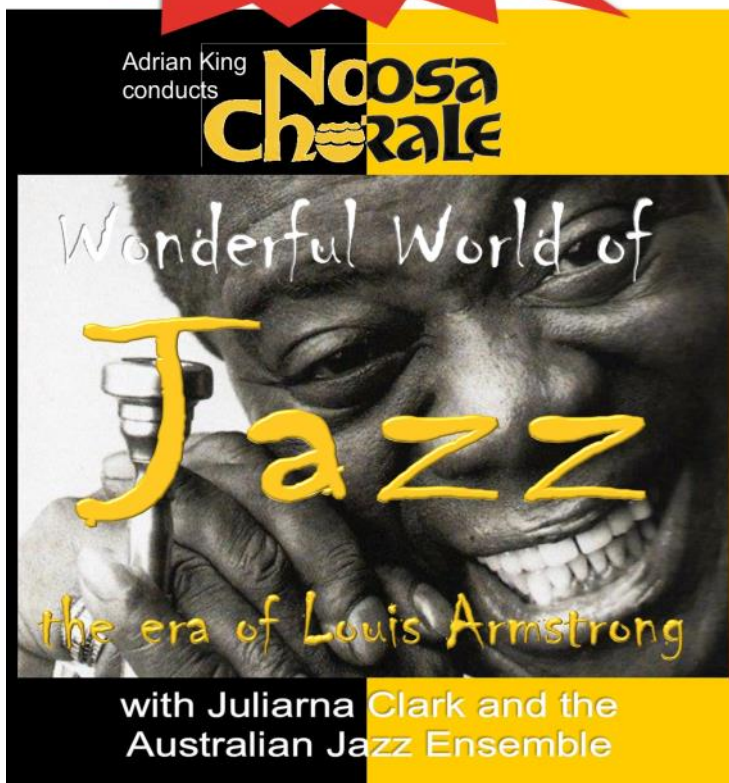

He is no stranger to Noosa and the Jazz Party, first coming here in 1993, the year after it started and local fans appreciate the fire and power of his playing, as well as his relaxed singing and irreverent sense of humour.

The Wonderful World of Jazz—the era of Louis Armstrong, Noosa Chorale and The Australian Jazz Ensemble at The J Friday, August 25 at 7pm and Saturday, August 26 at 2pm. Tickets $35.
